FE (not yet determined since the regular case officer will be out of the area) and Chief/LS/TR will probably attend this meeting.

11. Representatives from the Intelligence School and AIR met with Scott Varner, U.S.D.A. Graduate School Special Programs Department, to discuss the possibility of U.S.D.A. presenting various Communications courses on a contractual basis. It was decided that we would conduct one more round of Reading Improvement courses between now and June with an extension of the present contract. No further courses would be scheduled until Fall 1970 when we would have the results of the OMS/PSS survey and could decide whether to continue the program or cancel it. ✓

The "Effective Listening" course was also discussed. The factors being considered are need, cost, instructor, etc. The Intelligence School will continue to explore the use of U.S.D.A. capabilities to service our needs in these two (R.I. and Effective Listening) and other communications courses, but feels that AIR should continue to act as liaison and to write the contracts.

12. All day video taping and play-back was accomplished for:

Intelligence Briefing Course - 9 February
Intelligence Techniques Course- 13 February

13. All necessary tests were made on 10 February at the same safe-house mentioned in last week's report. [REDACTED] The Conference was sponsored by the National Security Industrial Association to:

A. Present information on the state-of-the-art in the on-going applications of computers to training.

B. Present information on research activities in the applications of computers to training.

25X1A

C. Present information and discussion on Department of Defense requirements and industry capabilities.

D. Identify problem areas requiring study and solution.

The military services are continuing to develop and use Computer-Assisted Instruction (CAI), although some speakers indicated that their schedule of development may have to be spread out over a longer period of time than originally planned because of budget restrictions. "Mini" computers, voice recognition by computers, author languages which will be easier to use, and new types of display units were discussed in the sessions on current research and future trends.

In response to requests from within OTR, Nancy asked Dr. Jesse Koontz, who reported on CAI at the Naval Academy, if he could arrange for some of our people to tour the Naval Academy CAI Center. He agreed to arrange such a tour, probably in March. Nancy also talked with [REDACTED] who was associated with the CAI project at the Naval Academy for a while, and who has recently returned to the National Security Agency (NSA). [REDACTED] said that NSA plans to begin using CAI, and he suggested that we meet for further discussion of NSA's plans. We will be getting in touch with him soon to arrange a meeting.

17. The Library was able to supply two books in the [REDACTED] quarterly book purchase order of 81 requested. This saved Uncle Sam $12.00 - not much but evidence the new system will be beneficial. The Library will also provide the CIA Library with catalog call numbers for those books in the [REDACTED] purchase order which we already have in the OTR Library. This procedure will save time and work.
